PROF. DEMOTTE'S OPENING LECTURE

Prof. John B. DeMotte, formerly a professor in DePauw University, delivered his famous lecture, "The Harp of the Senses," in Langdon Hall on the evening of October the sixth. This was the first of the six entertainments to be given in the lyceum course prepared by the college for the present session.

The attendance was good, and the audience represented a large part of the student body promising future interest and support to this feature of college life.

The lecture was beautifully illustrated and was delivered in a style that proved both interesting and instructing.

Prof. DeMotte's opening words were designed to awe his hearers into an appreciation of this world, man's universe, as some things more wonderful than is ordinarily supposed.

At length he confronted his audience with the surrounding mediums of atmosphere and ether, and began his discussion as to how the delicately constructed human senses respond to the vibratory wave motions of these mediums.

Becoming less abstract he introduced into his lecture an apparatus by means of which he photographed and threw upon the screen vibrations produced by sound, picturing them as they effect the ear drums.

From this physical discussion Prof. DeMotte gradually merged into the more psychological side of his subject, and bodily touched upon the secrets of character building. This was first reduced to the fundamental point of view, and then elevated to the plane of daily life.

The physiological structure of the brain and the nerve system were thus reviewed with an explanation of the continual destruction of brain cells by each passing thought and sensation. These cells were shown to become more and more sensitive and unstable upon the repetition of an act, either mental or physical. In consequence of this the practice either of good or evil was defined as being capable of becoming an involuntary impulse and hence not primarily under the influence of human control. The nature of these impulses was shown to assert itself in the form of character.

The brain in this manner was described as an originally plastic organ that may be moulded into the most delicate consciousness and attuned to the last degree of refinement, or on the contrary an organ highly exposed to the evils of life and if not properly protected and cared for—a curse to the soul within.

One of the big dailies recently contained the interesting information that Charlie Schwartz would "catch" for the University of Alabama team next spring. We are exceedingly sorry to contradict this statement, as Schwartz will merely coach for us.—Crimson and White.

AUBURN TIGERS VS. MONTGOMERY

In a game characterized by loose playing on the part of Auburn, Auburn defeated the Montgomery Athletic Club team, by the score of 46 to 0.

The day was rather warm for a football game and the work was very slow on both sides. At rare intervals the Auburn team would get together and advanced the ball rapidly.

For Auburn Captain Lacey, Streit and Jones played best.

A very small crowd was in attendance. The length of halves was 15 minutes.

The line-up was as follows:

AUBURN.	MONTGOMERY.
Hughes, Penton	C Butts
Moon	R. G. Moriarity
Whitner	L. G. Poundstone
Jones	R. T. Eubanks
Streit	L. T. Locke

Lacey	F. B. Paterson, W. B.
Foy, Woodruff	L. H. Paterson, W.

"DELEND A EST."

Could Cato in ancient Rome have foreseen how his memorable sentence would be so widely changed and so recklessly and badly used, we are sure he would have left unsaid his famous "Carhago delenda est," and even now he must look back from the Elysian fields with a feeling of sadness.

For from Tuscaloosa, the city of oaks and football, comes again that plaintive oft repeated cry, "Auburna delenda est." And this time it issues not from the sterner set for so many times has this ancient misquotation been used by them with such little success that they had not the heart to inflict upon us again.

Not so with the fair coed, this worn out slogan unprofitable as it has proved in the past still holds a charm for her and she boldly asserts that now is the time when the consummation devoutly hoped for comes to pass. 'Tis not the Auburn custom to boast before things have been actually accomplished but we are fondly trusting and firmly believing that the eighteenth of November will prove this statement of the Alabama coed only the vagary of a highly imaginative intellect.

"Tell me, Professor H—," she said as the gentle old horse they were driving along the country road dropped into a walk, "am I your ideal girl?" "No, darling, but you are my real girl."

And no further attention was paid the horse and at sundown he was grazing on the roadside.

Contributions for Orange and Blue must be in the hands of the Editor not later than Saturday before week of issue.

Just about ten days now before mid-term examinations, and everyone should put forth extra efforts to do well. This is the test of six weeks' work, the scale in which we are weighed, and we must not fall short at the very beginning.

Don't start off behind, if you do, you end behind. Get in front, lower classes are full, and it is to be a "survival of the fittest," so get to work and do something.

Our first college game is played, and of course the score was very gratifying, but that does not mean that we are to have an easy thing for the rest of the season, so don't "let down" and think that we can float to victory, we must work and work hard, not only that, everybody must work. Keep your enthusiasm at the highest all the while, and whenever there is a chance to help in any way, do it willingly, anxiously. We must work to be successful.

The M. M. I. football team has made a good impression at Auburn. The gentlemanly conduct of the men composing it, and the downright pluck and grit exhibited by them against heavy odds, speaks well for them and for their institution, and if this is a fair sample of M. M. I. material, they have some good men down there. We enjoyed having them with us, and it is our hope that we may be with them many times in the future in friendly contest.

"The old order changeth," and in consequence we are seeing many new things. For the accommodation of the increased number of students many changes are being made, among them the fitting up of a portion of the basement for a pamphlet room, a new entrance to the work-shop and the conversion into section rooms of the old chapel in the main building, around which cluster the memories of so many loyal alumni. Many incidents dear to the memory, have taken place in the old chapel, but the voice of the O. D. is heard there no more, peach battles are things of the past, class marches and halts no more exist; all victims of the ravages of time.

But there is a sign of progress, and while these memories are yet with us, everyone is glad for "old Auburn" and none would have it otherwise.

The number of post-graduates this year exceeds all former records, and this argues well for Auburn and it is also evidence of the fact that young men are realizing more and more the importance of an advanced knowledge in their special lines of work. As we are told every moment, this is a day of specialists and the best equipped man is the chosen one.

We are glad to see the number of post-graduates increasing and believe this is only one indication of what will be in the future.

The Athletic Rally held in Langdon Hall last week, the second this season, exhibited some class rivalry in yelling that is bound to result in good. If each class will elect a leader, and follow that leader on the field every afternoon, the yelling would be increased three-fold, and the yelling is essential. College spirit and athletic enthusiasm are usually judged by outsiders according to the yelling, and, indeed, it is a very good indication of the condition of the student body. The rally was a success, and we are sure that good, in more ways than one, will be the result. The reports from some of the classes were indeed encouraging and those classes who are a little slow should work hard to get at the top. Let everybody do a full share, the shirk is of no benefit to a college.

AUBURN'S HOSPITALITY.

We are glad to hear the M. M. I. boys report an enjoyable time while with us. Now we are to have other visiting teams during the season, some of our intercolleges. Without a doubt, all of our students are gentlemen enough to be courteous hosts. But we must do our very best to make our guests feel perfectly at home and must never let our college spirit cause us to make any ungentlemanly demonstrations. Of course we must root hard for Auburn, that is expected, but we must never make any personal remarks about our opponents, or try to guy them in an unkindly way. Old Auburn has long been famous for her pluckiness on the gridiron and her hospitality to her guests. So let us do nothing that will mar the brightness of her reputation.

THE COLLEGE GYMNASIUM.

Athletics play an important part in a college students career. It is the football and baseball games between their own college and other similar institutions that bring the student body together and makes them work in unity to defeat the common foe. These contests inflame each individual with that college spirit which nothing else can. Anyone who has been in Auburn a week, or even a day, has already caught that spirit of loyalty which is manifested here to such a degree. He has seen what is meant by the term "college spirit," and he who possesses this spirit wants to do something for his college. Many have gone out into the football field, others will later take part in baseball and track athletics, and some are interested in tennis, but what must the great majority do in the way of physical training? The place for them is the college gymnasium.

There are many who lack the physical ability to enter at once into the rougher games of football and baseball. A man must have a fairly well developed body to take part in these sports, and the place for him to begin to build up his constitution is in the gymnasium. It does a man little good if he has a well trained mind, but has a weak and and idly formed body. There are some who say that they "don't have time" to attend the gymnasium and all such should remember the old saying, "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Now is the time, now while we are young, to improve our physical being. Each student therefore, should attend the gymnasium at least twice a week and take some manly, active and benefiting exercise. In a very short space of time he will find that he has increased in strength, endurance, and has better health than before he began to take part in these hygienic exercises. You will not waste your time by going to the gymnasium, but, on the other hand, you will feel that you have passed an hour, or half an hour most sociably and advantageously.

The gymnasium besides being fitted with the usual forms of apparatus, is also suited for the game of basketball. This game is in its infancy at Auburn, and the proper interest for it has never been displayed by the student body. Basketball is a great game, a truly scientific game—one which requires almost as much head-work as football. Endurance is absolutely necessary in a good basketball player. There are few games that require more exertion, and it is most beneficial in that it promotes good breathing. Auburn is going to have a varsity basketball team this year, and everybody should try to make it. Last year a varsity team was gotten up almost on the spur of the moment to accept a challenge made by Birmingham and Howard college. The results of the games were defeats for Auburn. Fellow-students will you allow old Auburn to be defeated in this ungracious manner? Arrangements will soon be made for regular basketball practice and everybody should get ready to enter into the game with their whole soul and body.

But do you not need some kind of training for this game? If you expect to make the team you must be in a good physical condition. Start gymnasium work at once. There is nothing to keep you from doing so. Get a pair of "gym" shoes and be on hand next time to begin work in earnest. The gymnasium is here for all the students. It is yours. It is free. Now take advantage of it.

CAPTURED BY GHOSTS.

A verdant juvenile, a recent accession to the A. P. I., possessing in his estimation a vast amount of worldly wisdom, was lately heard boldly asserting that he entertained no fear of those eternal spirits known to mortals as ghosts, which roam the earth nocturnally.

The aforesaid vaunt was duly reported to the chief of the spectral race and after careful reasoning he reached the conclusion that 'twas his duty to force this youthful marvel of precocity to hold his tribe in greater reverence.

So last Sabbath evening when the lunar beams gleamed but dimly from the clouded heavens he dispatched a party for this purpose, and when the unsuspecting lad issued from his domicile to procure from the well a refreshing draught before retiring, he was promptly surrounded by the spectres clad in flowing robes, white as the purest snow. 'Twas an appalling sight but the victim thinking that it was only some friends, engaging in a playful prank was not much frightened but proceeded to seize one of the sepulchral figures and endeavored to forcibly remove his lengthy garment. This was a terrible sin and the ghosts promptly transported him, bound and gagged to their favorite stopping place when sojourning in Auburn, the spacious cemetery.

They were still in a lenient mood, however, and only tied him to a tombstone with the injunction to remain there quietly until the third hour after midnight had arrived at which time he would be released. With these instructions they left the miserable transgressor to repent his many sins and form good resolutions. But the obdurate youth thinking that the apparitions had departed a great distance, suffered his courage to rise and there polluted that sacred place by uttering a diabolical series of shrieks, the college yell he had learned, in the hope of arousing a rescuing party.

But his efforts were futile, the only results being that the ghostly array again appeared before him and they were so angered at his defamamation of the home of the dead that for a few minutes it seemed that they would rend him limb by limb but the shade of a former Auburn boy pleaded for him and he was allowed to go his way after copiously weeping and making profuse promises to mend his sinful ways, and he returned home a sadder and far wiser rat.

This lamentable experience is only published as a warning to similar characters to utter no sentences of unbelief concerning the ghostly clan for a second offender will be dealt with less gently and will probably be subjected to shameful torture and an ignominious death.

PICKNICKERS "PARTIED."

Owing to the inclement weather the K. E. picnic to be given at Wright's Mill, was metamorphosed into a surprise party at Dr. G. S. Anderson's. There were present Misses Wills, Harwell, Emma and May Harvey, Beasley, Drake, Annie and Madge Averyt, Messrs. Mohns, Shi, B. L. Shi, McNeely, Thornton, Samford, Lee, Rutland Otts, Prof. Hill and Prof. Halligan.

The party was entertained with blind dominoes and guessing celebrities. All enjoyed the games and the hospitality of their gracious and charming hostess, Misses Marion and Belle Anderson.

Delightful refreshments were served.

THE ATHLETIC ADVISORY BOARD

The Advisory Board is the governing body of Athletics at our institution. It is composed of fourteen members, one man from each fraternity, three men from Senior Class, two from Junior, one from the Sophomore, and one from the Freshman.

The president for the ensuing year is Prof. W. W. Hill, who has done a great deal for athletics, since coming to Auburn.

The other officers are: W. H. Foy, vice president; Prof. Hare, treasurer, and E. H. Wright, secretary.

The members are: Denson, J. V., Alsobrook, O. D., Davis, E. P., Guerry, D., Mohns, F. H., Stanley, R. K., Lacey, W. M., Thagard, F. J., Marks, H. C., Steele, J. T., Sargent.

COLLEGE ENTERTAINMENT.

The college authorities have completed the arrangements for a thorough and high-class series of entertainments for the ensuing year. The series will consist of six entertainments, and will be composed of the best talent in the land. The performers, consisting of lecturers, singers, etc., were selected by competent members of A. P. I. faculty after careful and deliberate consideration, and will doubtless afford a great deal of information and instruction, as well as pleasure.

This is not a money-making scheme of the faculty's, but is, indeed, an honest and sincere endeavor, on their part, for the pleasure and entertainment of the student body.

The fee for admission to these entertainments is very reasonable, and there is not a man in the college who is not able to attend them. The price of a season ticket is $1, which is the reasonable amount of 16 and two-third cents for each entertainment. For a single lecture the admission is 25 cents.

The first of this series of entertainments was a lecture last Friday night by Prof. DeMotte. He delivered his famous lecture on the "Harp of Senses." It was full of instruction and information, and was highly enjoyed by all.

Prof. DeMotte has set a high standard for the other entertainers who are to follow him to sustain. But the other entertainments will be of an entirely different nature and bid to be equally as entertaining and probably more enjoyable to some.

ADOPT ONE YELL.

Let's select one yell, learn it well and be able to get it off at any time and at any place. Something that is easy, simple, yet forcible.

Now on looking over the yells which have been composed at various times and given with success, "Long Auburn" is the typical yell which comes nearer filling all requirements than any of the rest. So let's adopt this for our battle cry. May it strike terror to the hearts of our foes and lend strength and encouragement to our Gal 3—O and B men.

Misses Belle and Marion Anderson enjoyed a days outing at Tuskegee Monday with their "cousin from New York." They report many preparations for the anticipated visit of President Roosevelt.

A special program will be given by the Y. M. C. A. Sunday, Oct. 23, at 3 o'clock at Langdon Hall.

Alabama went down in defeat before the terrible bucks of Vanderbilt, who seems to have one of the strongest football teams in the South. Our only hope of defeating her now lies in Auburn's team, which is showing her usual strength. We wish the Orange and Blue success when these two giants meet.

Many thanks, Alabama. We will tell Mike Donahue about it.

SPLENDID LECTURE.

The lecture, "The Harp of the Senses" on the evening of the 6th inst. by Prof. DeMotte, was very fine.

While it was profound in reasoning and unique in illustrations, it was so clear that all might understand its application.

One could hardly listen to his noble thoughts without an inward resolve to permit one's own life to be dominated by the true and the good.

MID-TERM EXAM'S.

Mid-term examinations are now only a few days off and we should not wait any longer to begin reviewing for them. Those of us who are acquainted with them know that it takes swift work to finish in an hour, which is the time given. Each one of us should strive to do our very best on these examinations so that our parents will be pleased with our work. Also a good beginning is much easier to hold up than a bad one is to bring up to the standard. Our resolutions at the opening of college were very great and we must keep them to the best of our ability. Let each one of us apply ourselves that we may have a good report to send home to father and mother.

KAPPA SIG ENTERTAINMENT.

Most delicious punch was served and the evening was most pleasantly spent in playing bid domino.

The hall was beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers. The prize, a beautiful medallion, was won by Miss Kendrick, of Montgomery, and the consolation prize, a bouquet of hot house roses, by Miss Mattie Lou Anderson.

The colors of the fraternity were repeated in the color scheme of the refreshments, emerald cakes embossed with letters K. S. and white and scarlet neapolitan cream.

The chaperones were Mrs. Black and Mrs. Rutledge.

Lost, strayed or stolen one K. Co. Finder will please return to A. P. I. and receive reward.
